Parmenides (Greek: Παρμενίδης) is one of the dialogues of Plato. It is widely considered to be one of the more, if not the most, challenging and enigmatic of Plato's dialogues. The Parmenides purports to be an account of a meeting between the two great philosophers of the Eleatic school, Parmenides and Zeno of Elea, and a young Socrates. The

The argument of Parmenides' Truth can be understood in dialectical terms, based on a self-verifying premiss in the second person, 'you think', in combination with some rules for sound argument. From this premiss he may be construed as deriving the conclusion of strong monism: there is just one, single, homogeneous being. But the conclusion
